Cratitude—Netes.

London, March 12.—Dispatches received at the war office confirm the reports of the Russian advance into Afghanistan. Instead of withdrawing the troops northward as requested by England, the Russians always pushed further southward, and a collision between them and the Affagan advance post may occur at any moment.

The Russian government, in reply to inquiries by Earl Granville, minister of foreign affairs, admiss that the advance of the Russian column in Afghanistan has not been checked, but asserts that the movement is not intended as a menace to England, that the troops have been pushed farther south in order that these may reach a more suitable position for camping purposes. These evasive statements from St. Feteraburg are looked upon in diplomatic circles in London as barrafaced attempts to gain time. All confidence appears to be destroyed by the latest Russia-dispatches, and war is now looked upon accretain. The most active military preparations are in progress both in England and India, and troops are being hurried forward by both sides with a haste which leaves no room for doubt as to the critical turn which negotiations have taken in the past twenty-four hours. It is rumored the some quarters that parleying between England and Russian ha cheroly caused, amundant nothing remains now but war. As a result of the startling war nows, nearly all securities show a decline. Conoich have fallen one per cent., and Russian honds twe per cent.

Some statistical information has been lately given in the popular Science Monthly on the subject of the death rate and sick rate in different portions of the country. We have some figures available on the first point that had been collected by the life insurance companies, but on the suject of sickness and its frequency there have hitherto been no reliable statistics. The figures given by the Monthly are taken from the reports of the Old Fellows and other benevolent societies who give add to members when laid up, and they consequently apply only to male adults. Judging from the experience of these societies, the average only to male adults. Judging from the experience of these societies, the average sickness of the better class of the male population of the United States and Canada, is a week and a half each year. A man therefore over fifty and a half weeks of health annually, can flatter himself with being better than the aver-age health. It was further found that here was a regular increase in the aver-age of sickness with each year of a per-age of sickness with each year of a perhere was a regular increase in the average of sickness with each year of a person-sille. At twenty-one, the average of sickness is three days per year, at thirty, four days: at thirty-five, we days; at forty, six days; at forty-five, seven days; at fifty-ne, seven days; at sixty, nineteen days, or nearly three weeks. This is for men. It would be interesting to have some figures on the subject of the sickness of women and children; we only know that they suffer more than men, how much more, there are no figures to show. Tim Ashland Express says: Neal's friends have been promising for the past three years to show that other parties were guilty of the murder of the Gibbons children, and that Neal is an innocent man, and the this day they have not shown an lota of evidence pointing to any one as the murderers. All, Barnett, the so called detective, has been mainly instrumental in keeping Neal buoyed up with the pleas that he can get him clear. His effort to fix the crime on an honest negro, Bill Direly, was a shameful and disgraceful attempt to convict an innocent man. To succeed in this, he brought to Catlettsburg a lying, negro pimp of his—calling him an assistant detective, whom he put upon the stand to swear against Direly, and the miserable scound-rel contradicted himself and told a dozen lies before he loft the witness chair. All, Burnett is regarded in this community as a crank and no better than he ought to be.

Klinkhammer & Co., Jordan, Minn, say, "Klinkhammer & Co., Jordan, Minn, say, "We sell mone Brown's Iron Bitters than all other bitters combined." L. These are only a few. We have hundreds more just as good.

This managers of the opera house have secured the great German dialect actor Chas. A. Gardner, to appear at the opera house next Monday evening. The critics are raving of Gardner, His "Karl" is said to be the best "Dutchman" ever seen upon the stage. Gardner played in Akron, O., lately, and the Daily Beacon of that place says: "The largest audience ever assembled in the Academy of Music greeted Chas. A. Gardner leat night. His enviable reputation coupled with the desire to listen to his peculiarly sweet voice, drew the large audience against ether strong attractions in the city."

Getting Rich.

Getting Rich.

[Bill Any's Letters]

It looks like our folks never will get rich. Some how or other they can't make the first $1,000. If they make it they can't save it. An Irishman was asked how he managed to get so rich, such as the saked how he managed to get so rich, that he was not obliged to have, but our people reverse the rule and buy most everything they are not obliged to have. That is the way we do at our house, and most everybody else's that I know of. We have got rich folks ways with a poor that it have been dependent of the same and the same and most everybody else's that I know of. We have got rich folks ways with a poor that it have been dependent of the same and most everybody else's that I know of. It is a curious circumstance in this life that the folks who would be most liberal and charitable with their money haven't got any surpuls to give away. Their very habits of free living and generosity keep them from accumulating, men up North to one down here. They begin early to keep and economics. They take care of the littles, and before long they have they have the first thousand clear, and then they are safe. Our folks begin early to keep up with society and the nearly to keep up with society and the last is the multi-sli, the foundation of wealth.
